

ALLIED ARMY LEAVES TURK SOLE MASTER OF GALLIPOLI

General, Sir Charles Munro Advises London That British Have Accomplished Final Evacuation of Peninsula Without Loss

FRENCH FORCES ALSO LEAVE FRONT SAFELY

People Accept Statement of Commander In Face of Other Reports To Effect That Heavy Casualties Were Sustained

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, January 10.—Despite their regret and the persistent reports from Berlin, Amsterdam and Constantinople that the move was accompanied by great loss, the people of London accept the official announcement of the final evacuation of the Gallipoli peninsula, which came last night, with but little outward feeling. Lieut.-Gen. Sir Charles Munro, who succeeded Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton in command of the British forces on the ill-fated Dardanelles expedition, called that the last man had been withdrawn from the blood-stained trenches, and that save for the wounding of one British soldier not a man was injured.

French Also Escape

The French also succeeded in withdrawing their troops without the loss of a single man.

Nor did the allied forces leave much behind them for the Turks to claim as the spoils of war. Seventeen guns, said General Munro in his report, which were worn out in service, were left behind, and that was all.

Despatches from Amsterdam, however, tell a different story of the evacuation from Constantinople. The evacuation followed and was the direct result of one of the fiercest battles of the war in that theater of operations.

Heavy Losses Claimed

The British and their allies, said this despatch, were forced back until the trenches around Soudi Bahr had been cleared. Although no figures were given in the Amsterdam report, it declared that the losses suffered by the allied troops were tremendous, even in this war of big casualties.

Still another report from a Constantinople semi-official source, asserts that the Turkish troops captured an armed camp of the Allies by a sudden rush, and that their heavy guns had succeeded in sinking one of the British transports loaded with troops as that vessel was leaving her anchorage after taking the retreating troops on board.

TEUTONS CLAIMING FRESH SUCCESSES

Say Ground Lost At Hartmannsweilerkopf In December Now Regained

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, January 10.—On the western front all is comparative calm, according to reports received here from Paris, which reports only unimportant developments. Berlin, however, says that the German troops operating around Hartmannsweilerkopf have retaken all of the ground lost to the French in the fighting of December 21. The Teuton report claims that twenty officers, 1018 soldiers and fifteen machine guns were taken in yesterday's battle.

Neither Petrograd nor Berlin claim developments on the Eastern battle front, where the Russian aggressive offensive has been pushing steadily ahead for some time, pushing the Teutons from one position after another.

Vienna, however, says that heavy Austrian columns have been despatched to counter-attack the Russians, and that these reinforcements have already engaged the enemy, but the report is silent as to results of this move.

TEUTONS REPULSED IN HOT COUNTER-ATTACK

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) PETROGRAD, January 10.—The war office officially announced last night that fierce attempts on the part of the retreating Teutons in Galicia, to get back the lost ground at Chortorysk had been repulsed by the Slavs, who are said to have inflicted heavy losses on the attacking columns. The official report also said that the Austrians have now been driven from the east bank of the Stripa river, after a series of hot engagements.

Deer He Fed Kills Keeper of Zoo of Park in Portland

Angry Stag Cuts Man To Ribbons With Knife Like Hooves

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) PORTLAND, Oregon, January 10.—William Wallace, keeper in the city park zoo has always been afraid of the deer that he fed, and yesterday afternoon this fear was justified for he fell victim to the attacks of one of the animals he had been caring for for months.

Wallace was feeding the animals their evening meal, when he noticed that one of the deer, a large stag, was acting strangely. Instead of calling assistance the keeper attempted to quiet the animal himself.

The deer, however refused to be pacified and Wallace entered the enclosure in which the animals are kept. In an instant the stag was upon him striking him with the knife like edges of his front feet, knocking the keeper down. When assistance, called to the spot by the cries of Wallace, arrived, it was too late to do more than drive the infuriated beast from the body, which had been cut to ribbons by the deer's hooves.

MILITIA THROTTLES YOUNGSTOWN RIOT

Rolling Mills Prepare To Reopen As Mediation Efforts Are Begun

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, January 10.—The strike situation here appears to be completely in the control of the militia and city authorities, who are working together to prevent any further outbreaks on the part of the rioting strikers from the Sheet Tube Company's rolling mill plants.

Announcement was made yesterday afternoon by officials of the company that preparations are now under way to reopen the mills without calling in the assistance of strike breakers. It is planned, the announcement continued, to give all former employees an opportunity to return to work, and no distinction will be made against any man.

After several abortive attempts representatives of the state and of the labor unions involved in the strike got together yesterday morning and began the work of mediation. It is understood that the state representatives have had the fullest authority given them by the officials of the mill company.

LORD BURNHAM DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

He Was Chief Owner of London Daily Telegraph

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, January 10.—Edward Levy Lawson, first Baron Burnham, K. C. V. O., died at his London mansion last night, after an illness which had lasted more than one month.

Lord Burnham was born in London, December 28, 1833, the son of J. M. Levy also of London. He was the chief owner of the Daily Telegraph, and for a time was Lord Lieutenant of the city.

In 1875 he assumed by Royal license the name of Lawson, acting on a request in the will of his uncle, Lord Lawson. He was prominent in politics, having at various times been alderman and justice of the peace of Bucks county, where he had an estate of more than 4000 acres.

TEUTONS PREPARING BLOW AT SALONIKA

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, January 10.—Correspondents in Greece of London papers continue their reports that the Teutons and their Bulgarian allies, are proceeding with their preparations to attack Salonika.

Last night despatches from Athens and Salonika asserted that information in both those places was to the effect that orders had been received from Berlin to hasten the preparations for this attack, in view of the steady progress that is being made by the Russians on the Galician front.

The Bulgars it is reported, are now attempting to reach the sea coast of the Adriatic, which is but forty miles distant from their positions around Elasson, Albania.

DIVIDED VERDICT FAILS TO FINISH NEW HAVEN CASE

Jury Disagrees On Guilt of Rockefeller, While Finding Others Innocent

LEWIS CASS LEDYARD ALSO MISSES ACQUITTAL

Six of Eleven Financiers Cleared and Lawyers Will Ask New Trial

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) NEW YORK, January 10.—A divided verdict in the famous New Haven railroad trial, involving eleven prominent financiers, was the result reached last night after weeks of labor on the part of the government. The jury, having been locked up for fifty-one hours, finally reported that it had acquitted D. Newton Barney, Robert W. Taft, James S. Hemingway, A. Heaton Robinson, F. F. Brewster and H. K. McHarg, but had disagreed on the guilt or innocence of William Rockefeller, Charles F. Brooker, Charles M. Pratt, Lewis Cass Ledyard and Edward D. Robbins. The final vote was eight to four for acquittal of these last also. The men were accused of conspiracy.

Chief counsel of the government's force of attorneys announced after the verdict had been rendered that he will ask for a new trial of the five indicted men whose status the jury declined to pass upon before the six directors of the railroad, who obtained the right of separate trials are called before the court.

Of all cases which the government has of late years brought against big corporations no one has attracted more attention than that against the New Haven road's directors and officers. This was in part because of the sensational charges made against George Mellen, formerly president of the road, and later against the directors, and in part because of the great financial importance of the indicted men themselves.

William Rockefeller, one of the indicted men, is a brother of John D. Rockefeller, and is himself a power in the banking and financial world. When the cry against the New Haven road was raised Mr. Rockefeller severed his connection with the directorate, but continued director in the New York Central and other railroads. He is now past seventy-four years of age and has been in poor health for some years.

Three years ago, when the congressional committee which was investigating the so-called money trust, summoned him he evaded the process several weeks, but was at last found at his home in South Carolina.

W. Morgan's Counsel

Lewis Cass Ledyard is one of the most prominent attorneys of the country, and was for many years counsel for the elder Morgan and his chief adviser in the organization of the steel corporation.

Charles F. Brooker, president of the American Brass Company, is one of the powers in the world of American finance, as is Charles M. Pratt, a multimillionaire, who has won prominence because of his many philanthropies.

Edward D. Robbins of New Haven was general counsel for the road for years, and D. N. Barney is a capitalist of Connecticut. Robert Taft is a New England cotton manufacturer, and the other accused men are equally prominent.

THREE THOUSAND MEN OF VILLA SURRENDER

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) GUAYMAS, Mexico, January 10.—The Villa armies are reported breaking up fast, under the constant hammering of the Carranza generals.

Information reached here last night announcing that three thousand followers of the rebel chief, under the command of General Mayas, had surrendered to the Carranza commander, General Madrigal, near Quiroga, state of Sonora.

This force was intercepted by the Carranza army while attempting to form a junction with a body of Yaquis Indians, against whom the force of General Madrigal had been operating for some days, in an extensive campaign to break the strength of the wild hill tribe.

EIGHT DIE IN EXPLOSION OF DUPONT POWDER PLANT

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) PHILADELPHIA, January 10.—Details of the explosion at the Dupont powder plant near Carney's Point, twenty-five miles outside of this city, tell of the killing of eight men, workers in the drying room.

MAY OPERATE AGAIN TO SAVE LIFE OF HUERTA

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) EL PASO, Texas, January 10.—The condition of Victoriano Huerta, former dictator of Mexico, who has been lying in a local hospital following a major operation, is still serious. His physicians last night expressed the belief that it will be necessary for them to operate again in the hope of saving the patient's life.

BATTLESHIP KING EDWARD VII ANNOUNCED SUNK BY A MINE

Entire Crew of 777 Officers and Men Saved, Says London Bulletin of Loss Issued By Admiralty

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LONDON, January 10.—The admiralty last night announced that the battleship King Edward VII had struck a mine and sunk. No further details of the disaster were given, save that "the crew was saved."

WAS ONE OF FAMOUS CLASS

The King Edward was launched in July, 1903, and consequently was more than twelve years old. She gave her name to the famous King Edward class of battleships, the largest of their kind until the still more famous Dreadnought came to supersede them. In the King Edward class are the Hindustan, Commonwealth, Dominion, Hibernia, Africa, Zealandia and Britannia.

The normal displacement of the battleship, latest victim of the sea war, was 16,350 tons, and her full load was 17,000 tons. Her complement was 777 officers and men. Her length was 430 feet, beam seventy-eight feet and mean draught twenty-seven feet. She did a little better than eighteen knots in her trial trips.

Her armor was of Krupp steel, and she carried four twelve-inch guns, beside a number of 9.2 inch, ten six inch, and five torpedo tubes. All the ships of this class were designed by the famous designer, Sir William White.

Cavalry Officer Slain By Slide In Yellowstone Park

Young Lieutenant McDonald Crushed Under Avalanche of Snow While Sledding

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) LIVINGSTON, Montana, January 10.—Lieut. Joseph E. McDonald, commanding a cavalry detachment on duty in the Yellowstone National Park, died last night from the injuries he received when buried under an avalanche of snow near the famous Mammoth Hot Springs, inside the park.

With four companions Lieut. McDonald was sledding, and at the base of a hill down which he had been running, they were caught by a snow-slide, and buried many feet deep.

The others, who were to one side, managed to dig their way out after a short time, but it was forty-five minutes before they succeeded in extricating Lieut. McDonald, who was badly crushed by the weight of the snow, and had suffered internal injuries from heavy boulders rolled upon him by the slide.

He was taken to the emergency hospital in the nearby hotel, and doctors called to his aid, but he died last night without regaining consciousness.

Major McDonald, of the inspection department, now stationed in Manila, was the father of the lieutenant. He had been notified of his son's death by cable.

CALLAO STAGGERS INTO GOLDEN GATE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) SAN FRANCISCO, January 10.—The Peruvian bark Callao, long overdue, and given up as lost at sea, staggered in through the Golden Gate yesterday afternoon, badly battered by the fierce gales through which she has been struggling for weeks. Her crew was utterly exhausted by the prolonged strain of their fight with the elements, and the ship was in a sinking condition when she crossed the bar in tow of a tug.

The captain reported that the first gale of the series through which his boat has come, ripped the sails from the bolt ropes, and forced him to abandon all thought of reaching Bellingham, his destination. He was blown far out of his course and to the south, and the ship was in a sinking condition when she crossed the bar in tow of a tug.

Prior to her arrival here the Callao had not been heard from since December 24, when she was sighted south of Cape Beale, B. C., drifting south.

The Callao at that time had been stripped of her sails by a gale, except that one topsail remained. The captain was spoken to by the crew of the Bamfield life saving station but declined to leave the ship. The United States coast guard cutter Snohomish went out to seek the Callao, but was not successful. The Callao carried 15 men. At the office of the charterer, W. R. Grace & Co., it was said the Callao was an American-built boat but recently transferred to Peruvian register.

DISTRICT DEPUTY GERTZ INSTALLS HILO PYTHIANS

A. F. Gertz, district deputy supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, has installed officers of the Hilo lodge. There was a large attendance at the ceremony, with refreshments following. Mr. Gertz spoke on the subject of Pythianism, and the benefits of membership in the order. The following officers were installed:—Chancellor, Commander, R. M. Lindsay; vice-chancellor, A. Swanson; prelate, M. de C. Coi; master of work, W. L. Keelen; keeper of records and seals, E. E. McChes; master of exchequer, J. W. Ladd; master-at-arms, M. A. Flanagan; inner guard, T. O. Mitchell and outer guard, Peter McGee.

AND THE BABY WON'T TELL

It isn't every 6-months-old baby that gets his picture (and his birthday) set reproduced on the front page of a city newspaper, as a "New Year Baby." But such is the distinction that has overtaken the husky young son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Correa of Wailuku. Young "Sonny" seems to have stolen a march on his parents, who were greatly surprised to recognize their young hopeful's likeness as the principal feature of the Honolulu Advertiser's New Year's greeting.—Maui News.

SALONIKA ARRESTS BRING RETALIATION FROM TURKS

Action of General Sarraill Followed By Reprisals In Constantinople

BERLIN, January 10.—Despatches to the Overseas News Agency last night report that Turkey, indignant over the arrest of Teutonic consular officials by General Sarraill, commander of the allied forces in Salonika, has now ordered the arrest of ten French and British officials left behind at Constantinople when the embassies of those countries were turned over to the ambassador of the United States.

PUBLIC MARKET NEEDED IN HILO

Lorrin A. Thurston Tells Big Island Supervisors How To Aid Small Farmers

The need of a public market in Hilo has been pointed out in a letter from L. A. Thurston to the board of supervisors of the Big Island. Mr. Thurston says that, as matters are at present, the small farmers are cramped in the marketing of their products, as they have no means of knowing how to get in touch with consumers in Hilo or elsewhere.

The letter proposes to advocate the introduction of government controlled markets and illustrates the point by referring to the Glenwood creamery, which broke down after it was turned over to the farmers. Mr. Thurston says that he would like to see the market in Hilo run on the same lines followed by the Honolulu division of the federal agricultural experimental station.

The Hilo market could cooperate with the Glenwood experiment station, and also the Honolulu market adds the writer, and the Hilo Railroad Company would assist as much as possible and would go as far as to carry produce without the usual prepaid freight charges. Arrangements would be made to bring the produce to market and to collect the freight money from the market superintendent after the sale of the goods.

Mr. Thurston says there is a demand for many things that are now imported from the mainland and he declares that it would be far better to raise the stuff here and thus keep the money in the county.

HAITI MURDER PLOT FOILED BY MARINES

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) WASHINGTON, January 10.—Navy department officials reported last night that despatches received earlier in the day from Rear-Admiral Caperton, had contained the details of an abortive plot on the part of the leaders of the so-called "black party" in Haiti, to murder President Dartiguenave and institute a new government under the leadership of either M. Paulin or M. Pourand, former senators.

It is believed that these men were behind the serious outbreak in the republic last Wednesday, at Port au Prince reported at the time as suppressed by the action of American marines.

Admiral Caperton adds that the leaders of the plot have been arrested, and that the American marines have the situation well in hand.

MACOMB HAS PRAISE FOR NATIONAL GUARD

Senator Charles A. Rice reports that when he was in Washington recently Brig.-Gen. M. M. Macomb, now president of the army war college and formerly in command of the Hawaiian Department, spoke words of high praise for the National Guard of Hawaii and the big increase it has had in the last few months.

He expressed gratification at the activity displayed in the islands and told the senator that if the militia of the states would develop as much in comparison the government would not need to think of a civilian reserve corps. He indicated that army officers in the east were watching the growth of Hawaii's national guard with deep interest.

Soldier Saves Own Life By Japanese Leg

Second Infantryman Who Walked Off Pier At Night Rescued In Unusual Manner

PERSONS who have saved their lives by the "skin of their teeth" are heard of now and again. On Saturday a soldier of the United States army saved his life by a leg, and a Japanese leg at that.

Pvt. J. A. Collier, Second Infantry, Fort Shafter, was detained by the provost guard, it being suspected that he could not satisfactorily navigate under the load that he was carrying.

After a time he was allowed to leave the police station by the officer in charge of the guard, and told to go as far as Nunnau street, turn to the right and wait for his car.

Instead of following instructions he turned to the left, walked out on Pier 12, and went overboard.

A Japanese who was nearby and who heard the splash which resulted from Collier's precipitate immersion, rushed to the spot and seeing the man struggling in the water clung to the wharf while he dangled a leg for the soldier to clutch.

The man in the water grabbed the leg and held on for dear life, the Japanese, meanwhile, shouting lustily for assistance.

Word was sent to the police station and Police Officer George Ellis went to the spot, found a rope and he and the Japanese soon had the soldier out of the water.

Collier was placed in the patrol wagon and taken to the hospital at Fort Shafter.

SWISS PROMISE HELP TO FORD PEACE PLAN

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) THE HAGUE, January 10.—Information reached here last night that the Swiss authorities have decided to send five civilian delegates to the permanent peace board, which it is hoped, will grow out of the Ford peace expedition.

The party of peace advocates now on its way here contains representatives from America, Norway, Sweden, Holland, and Denmark. It is believed that the permanent board will be established within the week, and get down to work immediately.

The American delegates, it is said here, will include Jane Addams, Henry Ford, who is believed to be about to sail again for Europe, and W. J. Bryan.

FUGITIVE OUTLAW PLIED WITH BOOZE AND THEN RETAKEN

Sheriff Pua of Big Island Returns Marcel Schmidt To Territorial Prison

ESCAPED ROAD GANG NEARLY MONTH AGO

Visited Friends and Attended Dance While Police Officers Were Hunting Him

Drink brought to a sudden end the vacation of Marcel Schmidt, from the road making gang of prisoners, and now he is back in a cell of the Oahu prison, where Sheriff Pua of the Big Island has landed him.

Schmidt, a native born Porto Rican of German parentage, has the reputation of being one of the most desperate of the territorial prisoners, and but for his weakness for "booze," might still be at large in Hawaii, where he was recaptured. His capture was effected through the cleverness of Police Officer Bill Campbell and Sanitary Inspector Frank Furtada, both of Hilo, last Tuesday evening, after he had drunk himself stupid with wine and whiskey supplied by his officers.

The prisoner escaped from the road making gang about four weeks ago, and according to the story told the officers after his capture, had a high old time on the Big Island. He visited almost all the plantations along the Hamakua coast while out "on leave."

The capture of Schmidt was accomplished by the use of two men who were sent out to try and find trace of him, with orders to telephone the news to the police as soon as they discovered his whereabouts. The two detectives worked in different localities and when on Tuesday last word was sent by one of them that Schmidt had been seen mauka of Pauhanu, the country police got busy at once.

One police officer sent a man up to the mauka camp with instructions to see if Schmidt was still hanging about the place. Another man was sent to Pauhanu and told to keep watch there. This plan worked all right, for it was soon discovered that Schmidt had made his way down to Pauhanu and that he had been in the habit of doing so for some time. He would visit a friend's house and get food and drink, but he never could be prevailed upon to eat or sleep in the house. He was suspicious of everybody and insisted upon eating while seated on a heap of firewood in front of his friend's house and from where he could see in every direction for some considerable distance.

When the word was sent out that Schmidt was at his friend's house one of the policemen gave another man two dollars and told him to buy a gallon of wine and a bottle of cheap whiskey. This was done and the liquor was taken to the house. As soon as the news reached Schmidt that there was wine and whiskey in the vicinity he asked for a drink but still refused to enter the house. He was given several drinks as he sat on the logs and gradually became drunk. He talked loudly and boastfully about his doings and then, after a while, appeared to be drooping as he sat.

When the desperado was apparently well filled with booze word was sent to the police who were waiting nearby. Officer Campbell and Inspector Furtada jumped upon Schmidt and grappled with him. It took some time to get him handcuffed on the criminal.

Schmidt was taken to Hilo, by Deputy Sheriff Richard and lodged in the jail there. On the train the prisoner said that he would serve his sentence and come out with a fixed purpose—that of killing the informer who gave him away to the Hamakua police.

Upon arrival at the Hilo police station, Schmidt was asked by Sheriff Pua why he had run away from the road making gang. His reply was: "Me like vacation, so run away. I was going back to the gang next Sunday."

Dodge Police Several Times

One feature of Schmidt's escape, according to his own story, was that on several occasions he was passed by police officers on the country roads. He saw Deputy Sheriff Richard enter the Pauhanu store one day and on another occasion he just stepped under a bridge in a gulch until Sheriff Pua and another officer drove over the structure in an automobile.

Schmidt was present at a dance in Honokaa village and, while showing the latest steps of a "Prison Trot," was warned that a police officer was riding along the road. The criminal darted out the back door of the house where the ball was going on and forgetting to apologize to his astonished partner, made a dash for the canfields. It was while cranking his way through the tall cane that he lost his necktie.

The man evidently was well supplied with information as to the movements of the police officers as he always managed to dodge them until the booze got the better of him.

SALONIKA AGAIN SHELLED BY TEUTONIC AEROPLANES

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.) SALONIKA, Greece, January 10.—Teutonic aeroplanes again bombarded the outskirts of this city last night, but did little damage. They were fired upon by anti-aircraft guns and a number of allied airmen who were as soon as they were reported.
